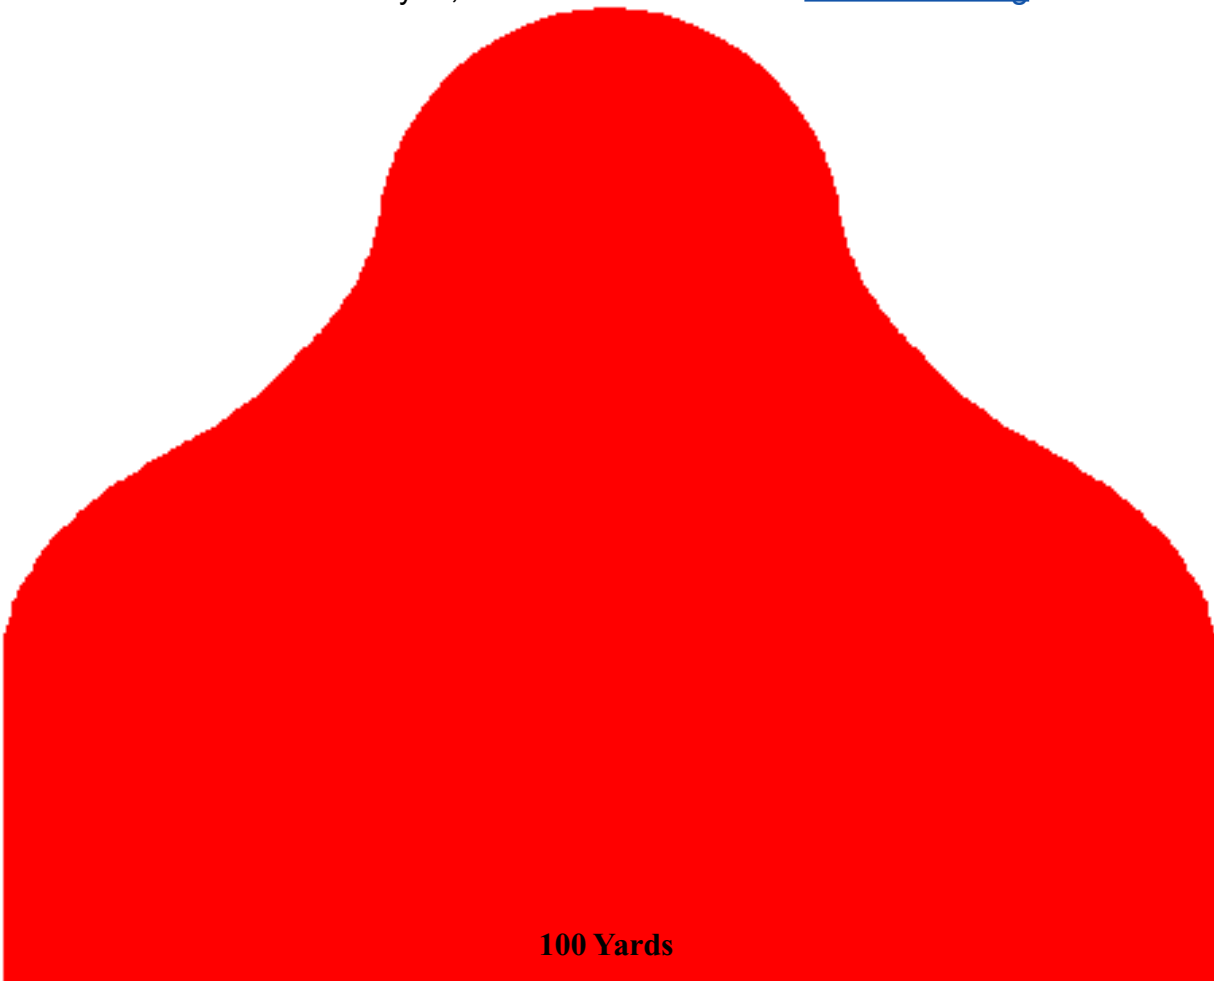
The Tradition of the American Rifleman

Can you uphold the Tradition of the American Rifleman?

The famed American Rifleman from the Revolutionary War could make an accurate shot at 300+ yards with a muzzle loading rifle and basic iron sights.

Certainly, with today's rifles, that American Rifleman could do even better... but can you meet the standard our founding fathers laid down over 200 years ago?

All you need is a 25 meter (82 feet) range with a safe backstop, a rifle(any rifle), and this target. Shoot from any position, three shots at each target. The reduced-size targets mimic the sight picture at various ranges. A rifleman can keep three shots on each target. If you are unable to employ the traditional skills of an American Rifleman, by keeping three out of three on each target; you need to come to an Appleseed, and learn how to become a Rifleman. For an event nearest you; check the schedule at: www.RWVA.org



"But please go, no matter how good you think you are, check it out. All good people, lot's of kids (responsible enough to shoot) and wives/girlfriends too...I REALLY enjoyed our time there even when I got a little fatigued at the end of the first day. I would go again and recommend EVERYONE in the world go just for the history lessons alone." -Idaho Appleseeder

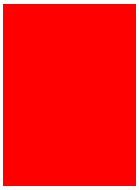
Copyright 2008 Project Appleseed: This target may be reproduced as long as it is not altered and this copyright notice remains with the target.

What do you need to bring? Same as it was in the old days; just you, your rifle, and ammo. Whether it's an old military surplus rifle, a .22 LR, or your deer rifle; you will be welcome on the firing line. In 2 action-packed days, Appleseed instructors will help you advance toward being an American Rifleman.

"There is no better way to spend $70 and 2 days than to attend one of these events. It'd be a bargain at 10x the price. Guys, we need to pack this event. It's not expensive...you can shoot a .22lr if you want to save on ammo." -Missouri Appleseeder

200 Yards

300 Yards



If you're using a Revolutionary War rifle, this is your expert mark!

250 Yard

"I have found a renewed pride in the people of our country that are out there spreading the word...and it was great to meet other rifleman/woman from around NY State." -New York Appleseeder

To graduate as an expert American Rifleman using modern firearms – and carry on the tradition of our founders – all three shots must consistently be in this square.

500 Yards

"Liberty cannot be preserved without general knowledge among the people" -John Adams

400 Yards

The American Rifleman has made their mark on history. Were you able to place all three shots on each target? Have you mastered the 500 yard shot, with all three shots in the square?

Appleseed can teach you how. See www.appleseedinfo.org/schedule for an Appleseed near you.

April 19, 1775 - The Day Marksmanship met History and the Heritage began. Liberty in America, was secured through marksmanship. Help honor that fine tradition, by becoming a true American Rifleman. The Revolutionary War Veterans Association can help! The RWVA sponsors rifle marksmanship and American Heritage clinics around the county, through a program called "the Appleseed Project."
Find out more at: www.AppleseedInfo.org -Appleseed - Continuing The Tradition of the American Rifleman

Copyright 2008 Project Appleseed: This target may be reproduced as long as it is not altered and this copyright notice remains with the target.